Anniversary Services at Knox Methodist Church

The first anniversary service of Knox Methodist church at Frank was held on Sunday last; Special services were held in the morning, afternoon and evening.

Rev. W. H. Irwin, of Bellevue, preached the anniversary sermon in Knox Methodist church on Sunday, his subject in the morning being "The Law of Spiritual Quickening." He pointed out that in all the great spiritual movements of history there was an effort put forth to feed the soul hunger that was peculiar to the time. Luther dealt with the desire for the emancipation of the conscience from the dominance of Roman decrees, the Puritan Fathers with the revolt of the divine right of kings. Wesley and Whitfield saw under the worldliness of the 18th century a hunger for a personal experience of God and they endeavored to feed that hunger. Moody preached the "Fatherhood of God" in a way that made God real to the people of the 19th century. The hunger of today is for brotherhood among men. They desire to get closer together, to have the barriers of class, of race, of language, of religion torn down and the work of the church is to foster the spirit of brotherhood in every possible way.

In the afternoon the Sunday School rally was held in the church at which Rev. W. H. Irwin gave a long and interesting talk to a crowded audience.

In the evening Mr. Irwin preached to a packed house on "Feeding the Multitude." His text was Matt. 14: 16. "There is no need for them to depart. Give ye them to eat." Our present duty is to preach sermons on the relationship of the individual to his neighbor.

We give inspiration, encouragement and comfort, but when the benediction is pronounced the people go away, the weak to consult their physicians, the strong to attend to their economic necessities in the stress and strain of our modern industrial warfare. So true is this that we have on our hands a great modern tragedy of seeing the economic, political, educational, and physical interests of the race removed from under the control of spiritual forces. Economists tell us of the vast resources of Mother Earth. She has enough for all many times over and yet millions of our fellow creatures are in need. There is no need for them to depart. All that is necessary is the application of spiritual forces to the working out of the production and distribution of the world's necessities. He closed with an urgent appeal for Christian service to be rendered to the whole community, irrespective of class, nationality, or church affiliation.

Newfoundland Does Not Want It

St. John's, Nfld., Sept. 27.—The suggestion in despatches from Washington that Newfoundland might seek a reciprocity treaty with the United States now that the proposed pact between United States has been disposed of, does not seem likely in the view of officials to be received with special interest among Newfoundlanders although at the time when the Canadian agreement was first arranged tentatively, the colony would have welcomed a similar arrangement. The present apparent reversal of feeling is accounted for by the fact that a number of fisheries firms which have made Gloucester, Mass., their exclusive headquarters, recently have established extensive branches in the southwest coast of Newfoundland.

Here and There

A strong earthquake shock was felt in the Prince William Sound country of Alaska on Saturday last.

Masked men held up a car on the Iditarod Flat tramway, near Flat City, Alaska, on Friday last and stole $35,000 in gold dust.

On the morning following the nomination of J. A. M. Aikens, as Conservative candidate for Brandon, the stock of the C.P.R. dropped five points.

Sir Harold Harmsworth, a younger brother of Lord Northcliffe, who owns the huge pulp and paper mill in Newfoundland, is making an extensive trip through the West. He was in northern part of Alberta last week.

Louis Colquhoun, an old associate of Bill Miner, who, together with Miner and Shorty Dunn, held up a mail train on the coast of British Columbia, is in the penitentiary hospital, New Westminister, B.C., on Friday last.

The eighteenth annual Spokane Interstate Fair will be held commencing Monday next, October 2 to October 8. A splendid effort is being made by the management to have the greatest and most comprehensive mineral exhibit ever shown in the Northwest.

Two hundred railmakers, employed by Guest, Keen & Hectrextiles, Ltd., of Dowling, Wales, have just gone out on strike. They demand 27 shillings a day, instead of their present wage of 25 shillings. A number of other men employed by the Mass firm went out in sympathy with the bank men, and altogether some 300 men quit work.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier will continue to lead the Liberal party for the present. To a group of press correspondents he said that he would not drop out of politics at the present. "I would feel like a deserter if I left friends now. He said that business would be expedited and resignations of the ministers would be placed in Earl Grey's hands as soon as possible.

On October 10 the voters of California for the second time in the history of the State, will decide by their vote, whether woman shall have the right to vote. The last time woman's suffrage was submitted to the ballot in this State it was defeated by only 5000 votes. Times have changed greatly since then, and the advocates of woman's rights are not only more hopeful of success than ever before, but quite confident that California will win the honor of becoming the sixth state in the union to grant suffrage to woman.

"I have a world of confidence in Chamberlain's Cough Remedy for I have used it with perfect success," writes Mrs. I. Hasford, Folesville, Md. For sale by all dealers.

Happenings in and Around Bellevue

Miss Ruby Irwin, sister of Rev. W. H. Irwin arrived from Clinton, Ontario, on Saturday and will make her home with her brother.

The union men are busy laying in stores of wood for the winter. They evidently anticipate difficulty in procuring coal from the mine.

The condition of Edward Atkinson is improving. We will look forward to his early recovery from the results of his unfortunate accident.

Rev. W. H. Irwin was in Macleod on Friday and witnessed the celebration of the victory of the Conservative party by the citizens on that night.

Fred. Padgett, our late correspondent, and his chum, Arnold Varney, report some interesting experiences in their hatching experiments at Tabar.

All who attended Bellevue church on Sunday night enjoyed a very fine sermon on "Judas," preached by Rev. A. S. Tod, of the Presbyterian church, Blairmore.

Several of our citizens report the loss of fowl. There is much speculation around the camp as to whether the thief walks on two legs or four, or whether his skin be black, white or of the far covered variety.

The scene around the polling booth during election day was quiet but some difficulty was experienced owing to the number of voters waiting at the entrance. At 11 o'clock the polls were closed for the day and the election was over.

Rev. George Edwards, of Livingstone, was writing on his theological examinations in town on Tuesday. He reports the crops very heavy in his district and little damage from the frost and snow as they were nearly all out.

The stork hovered a while over Bellevue during the week and as a result Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Amos are the parents of a bouncing baby boy and Mr. and Mrs. Albert Padgett, of a frolicsome daughter. We offer hearty congratulations.

J. B. Rudd returned from Moyie, B.C., on Sunday evening last after spending two months amongst the fruit orchards of the Kootenay. Mr. Rudd brings back glowing reports of that section of B.C. and believes it is a delightful place to live.

An interesting social function took place in the Socialist Hall on Wednesday evening, when a concert and dance was given by some of the leading people of the town. The best talent of The Pass participated and a number of visitors from the neighboring towns were present and all pronounce it a success.

A Present For Emmereit

The Buyers Proved Veritable Bulls In A China Shop

By CLARISSA MACKIE

Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

Raymond blurted his startling announcement into the ear of the bank house. The three comrades stared open mouthed at one another until Pepper broke the silence.

"Married!" he uttered dazedly. "Did he say that?"

Tony Goff solemnly nodded. "And he said his name is Emmereit Hodge," he said in an awed tone.

"Emmerrert Hodge?" repeated Tony bitterly. "A girl with a name like that always has a tony wedding."

What did Raymond say next? He didn't sense it all. I was so faber-gasted."

"As near as I can recollect he said there was to be a wedding at her house and we were invited. Tony here has got to stand up with the bridegroom."

Jink Prole unloined his long legs and stood erect, towering above the other two. "What about a wedding present?" he demanded.

"That's easy. We'll all chip in and get Mrs. Carwood to buy it down to Fenfield. Whimsey always knew what to do."

Tony Goff shook his head. "Nix on that, Pepper. Why, Raymond's been our mate for three years—ever since he came to the bank after that mighty friendly to him. I reckon all of us do, and we must pick out the present ourselves. What say?"

The other nodded assent, and as it happened that the morrow was the monthly pay day they decided to ride over to Fenfield the next afternoon and select a wedding gift for Raymond's bride.

With pockets well lined and bronzed faces portentously gleaming, they set forth on the twenty mile ride from the Twin Star cattle ranch to the largest town in the country.

They stopped at Red Spider for the mail, and the three wedding invitations that faced them nearly caused a stampede. Jink Prole stared unhappily at the engraved words.

"I dunno," he hesitated. "It might be the present business oughter be did by an expert. If we should make a mistake, she—the lady—Emmerrert—might kick."

Tony Goff tucked his chin and looked prepared to smoke. "There ain't no use losing your nerve," he said at length. "You lived up to the job, and we're to carry it through. Mebbe we ain't got to go clean to Fenfield. What you think of that lamp in Cor's window?"

He pointed to the next afternoon at the dusty, fly spotted merchandise displayed by the postmaster.

The three surveyed it longingly. It was a tall lamp of pink glass and when freed from dust and lighted might cast an added rose glow over the future of the newly wedded pair.

Mr. Pepper strode to the door and bawled an inquiry.

He returned and flung himself on his horse. "Three thirty-eight, including the shade," he repeated contentedly, "and with a bundle in our pockets to spend!"

With one accord they resumed the journey to Fenfield, leaving behind the dark shadowing mountains with the last glimmer of the sunset upon the upper ridges.

They pounded into the town, and, hungry and thirsty, they made their way to a restaurant and satisfied their appetites.

Afterward they entered the Farum emporium, a maze of narrow aisles running between shelves and counters laden with glass and china in every conceivable form of fragility.

The side walls of the store were lined with counters upon which were piled household wares, while the rear presented a gloomy barricade of furniture against a background of gaudy carpets.

Jink Prole stooped down on a pile and reached the handle of a vase as a pretty girl arose from a chair and laid down a piece of fancy work.

"What can I do for you?" she asked briskly.

Before the tall ranchman could answer there came a terrific crash and the sound of splintering glass blended with startled profanity.

"Oul!" exclaimed the girl. "That's real cut glass!"

"Is this considerable cut up?" agreed Prole as they reached the counter of disaster, where Pepper and Tony Goff stood staring down at the havoc they had created.

each laid $11 on the shelf. The girl took it reluctantly. "I told Mr. Farum he had the shelves too crowded to be safe," she said. "You've paid for these things. Would they do you any good if I was to send you for 'em?" You could use 'em for ornaments."

"Nary, mib; they ain't any good to us. We're looking for what are we looking for, Prole?" demanded Tony impatiently.

"A wedding present," drawled Mr. Prole, gingerly withdrawing from the portion vicinity of breakables, "in view of a pink glass lamp, but it don't cost enough. Have you got a real expensive 'luminator, mib?"

The girl smiled and led the way to a shelf laden with a flower bed of colored lamps. She glanced at the prices tags and then said: "This one for $12."

"The most expensive one it's very pretty."

The three surveyed the lamp doubtfully. It was a small lamp of brass, and with an elaborate shade set with pink opalescent glass.

"It don't cost enough," said Prole with regret. "It's mighty pretty, but we couldn't hand out no money present like that to Emmerrert. Show us something better."

The girl uttered an exclamation and took them to a case full of silverware. As they gravely examined knives and forks the girl watched them uneasily.

At last, frowning deeply, she spoke and said: "This one for $12. It's a nice present."

"That's the best," said Tony Goff. "We'll all chip in and get Mrs. Carwood to buy it down to Fenfield. Whimsey always knew what to do."

SOMETHING PLEASANT.

LAST winter I remember that the evening I had started in to supper. Oh, the north wind moaned and rumbled. And a sheet of downy whiteness covered the fields and streets and houses. And at five o'clock next morning I was roused from slumber aware of the snow on my face and to start the furnace heat.

Last winter I remember that I got home some one day. And found my Nellie sitting in her room and heard her say:

"Hurry right down to the furnace. I've been nearly frozen here. I have shaken it and it won't do. See what you can do, my dear."

Why, this house is something frightful! Time or again I think of it. If you can't get steam up quickly I'm afraid I'll freeze to death."

Last winter, I remember, I was roused from slumber deep. To close the bedroom window, for a little draft had come to chase.

Of snow had been blown up. When my feet touched the floor I let out an awful roar. I remember how she smiled for the agony words I said.

When I jumped about a rocker as I scrambled back to bed.

Last winter I remember that we woke one day to find that our little ones were frozen. Oh, I could recall to mind.

That the frosty weather struck us, trouble number one. But today as I sit writing with the sweat beads on my brow.

I like to recollect them! They're so mighty pleasant now. Edgar A. Guest in Detroit Free Press.

THEY STOOD THE PACE

THE MAORIS HAVE ADOPTED THE WHITE MAN'S WAYS.

The Aborigines of New Zealand Are Among the Few Races That Have Been Able to Change Their Entire Mode of Life in Such a Way as to Compete With the White Invaders.

—Run Hugs, Sheep Farms.

Something over seventy-five years ago, a wild, cannibal, Maori chief, named Pomare, sailed out of Wellington harbor with his choice and blood-thirsty band of naked savages as you could ever imagine. They headed for the Chatham Islands, about 500 miles away, where lived their prosperous and equally cannibal enemies, the Morioris.

The Maori conquerors carried shotguns; the islanders had nothing but their bows and arrows and a rather inferior kind of spear. History is not very certain about the details of this obscure, but ferocious war.

But the Morioris were so badly defeated that there are less than a score of them on their islands today. The invaders literally ate them out of existence.

The veteran Pomare, half-garbed and savage like the rest, presided over the execution of his enemies.

That was no uncommon instance in Maori warfare a short three-quarters of a century ago. Today the Maori and hold land in New Zealand side by side with white men. In some ways, Maori lawyers, Maori doctors, Maori ministers of religion have more of the graces of civilization than their neighbors. In fact, they are coming to know it in this country at all. Only the other day King George included a Maori in his list of knights.

The Maori are noteworthy among all the primitive nations of the world in having taken the graces of the white man's civilization and left the vices alone.

An aged colored man was engaged in hanging the grass of the lawn of a young broker when the latter returned to his home and, thinking to have some fun with the old man, said:

"Sambo, if you burn that grass, the entire lawn will be as black as you are."

"Dat's all right, sah," responded the negro. "Some o' dese days that grass grow up an' be as green as you are."

ESKIMO SEALERS.

A Battle of Alertness Between the Hunter and His Prey.

The Eskimo method of hunting seals shows a primitive calling improved to a fine art. When a seal is discovered the direction of the wind is at once noted. Then the hunter, keeping himself low to the ground, walks up to within about a quarter of a mile of it. Beyond this he begins to crawl and advances only when the seal's head is down.

Now, as the seal is one of the most wary of animals and has the habit of throwing up its head quickly every few seconds to guard against danger, it follows that the Eskimo has to be extremely alert if he would get his seal. When the seal's head is down upon the ice its eyes are shut and it is said that in these brief intervals it takes its sleep.

The hunter is carefully watching the seal's movements is able without much difficulty to get within about 200 yards of it, but at closer quarters he is obliged to employ other tactics. He lies down at full length on the ice. Then the real sport begins.

When the seal's head is down the hunter, who keeps a keen eye on his prey, is able to approach still nearer by dragging himself forward on his elbows. This maneuvering continues for some time until the distance between man and beast has been reduced to a few yards.

When near enough to make a sure shot the Eskimo takes his bow and arrow from his side and sends a swift shaft through the head of his unwitting companion. Sometimes instead of the bow and arrow a harpoon is used with equal effect—Harper's Weekly.

The Parents' Joke.

Some parents seem unable to resist the temptation to make a joke with the Christian names of their children, says the London Chronicle. "The domestic House registers testify to the existence of a Mr. Mineral Waters, a Frosty Winter and an Alfred Dars Weeks. There is something to be said in favor of naming children in the order of their arrival—Primus, Secundus, etc.—but it is unfortunate for a well known Canadian named Cumber that he should have fallen to his lot to be Quintus, for his name is always appearing in the papers as Mr. Q. Cumber.

It was one of the oldest conductors breaking in a new recruit who had shown that he was not particularly quick to catch an idea. The car came to a stop at the station. The conductor whispered the name to the recruit. The latter did not understand, and the conductor, losing patience, said, "Webster—Webster's dictionary." And the passengers were amazed to hear the new man bust out, "Webster's dictionary."—Boston Post.

Nerves Are Exhausted

And Nervous Prostration or Paralysis Are Creeping Steadily Upon You

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food

You hear of people suddenly falling victims of nervous prostration or some form of paralysis. But when you get all the facts of the case you find that they have had months or years of warning.

They have slept well. There have been frequent attacks of nervous headache. Digestion has failed. They have been irritable, nervous and excited and have found memory and concentration failing.

Had they realized their danger and persisted in taking the Nerve Food, they would have restored the feeble, wasted nerves by use of such treatment as Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

This great restorative treatment cures by forming new, rich blood and by rebuilding the wasted nerve cells. No matter how far advanced the case, beneficial, for each dose adds to the system a certain amount of rich, red blood.

Nervous diseases come on slowly and can only be overcome by patient and persistent treatment. Prevention is always better than cure, and for this reason you should endeavor to keep your system at high water mark by using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food at the first sign of trouble. 50 cents a box, or boxes $1.50. ### RIISING IN BUSINESS.

The Road to Success Is Easy For the Exceptional Employee.

Mr. Carnegie says: "The most valuable acquisition to his business which an employer can obtain is an exceptional young man. There is no bargain so fruitful."

By the exceptional young man Mr. Carnegie means the one who is always looking out for his employer's interest.

The young man, who keeps his eyes open, who is a ways trying to make suggestions for improvements in the business, who is always studying for some better, simpler, more efficient way of doing things.

The exceptional boy or young man is the one whose main ambition is to help along the business to further his employer's interests in every possible way: the one who says after hours during the busy season to help out wherever he can.

The exceptional young man is one who when any emergency arises in the concern has a valuable suggestion for its solution.

The exceptional young man is the one who is always on the alert for business, who is so polite and attentive and obliging to his customers that everybody wants to deal with him; who makes friends for the firm, who adds dignity to the house—Orison Sweet Marden in Success Magazine.

A GRANITE BOMB.

Jack Frost Hurled It Down Into the Yosemite Valley.

Delicate Frost tracings on the window panes seem to be the work of fanciful and harmless spiritiveness, but the hand that forms them is capable of greater deeds and of other kinds.

Mr. A. Henson Chase, in "Yosemite Trails," describes an experience that has been wonderfully impressive to the spectator. He had been spending some weeks in exploring the Yosemite valley and the "great rocks," like El Capitan, that wait it in.

Standing one day of late autumn about the middle of the valley, I was startled by a report like a cannon shot, which filled the whole valley with echoes that roared and boomed, replied and multiplied, in a long continued, glorious tumult.

As the deafening sound died away in sudden murmurings under the vicer of El Capitan I was able to distinguish the point of attack by the long, clattering descent of a vast quantity of rock.

The night had been a cold one in the valley, and on the seven to eight thousand feet levels of the upper rim the temperature must have dropped almost to zero.

Frost, working quietly with his Archimedean lever, had just succeeded in shivering down from the top of the southeast a trifle of fifty tons or so of granite.

For near a thousand feet the boulder fell swift, swift and silent, until it struck the edge of a cliff like a bomb, shattered into a myriad flying shards and splinters and dislodged a number of fragments that rained down to the valley in a stream that lasted for minutes.

Then from the spot where the boulder had struck dust began to rise into the air, and a great cloud of smoke and steam began to billow up like a volcano.

The Dominion Elections

The Dominion elections are now about over and many surprises—disagreeable and otherwise—have been sprung upon the electors of this country.

But very few people around these parts expected a change of government and still fewer were those who thought that such a majority would be given the Conservative party.

While the people of this province took favorably to the proposed reciprocity agreement between Canada and the United States, it is all too evident that the voters in the eastern provinces did not view the said agreement in the same light as the Westerners did. Then, again, the false annexation scare raised by the Conservative party and so persistently carried on by their spell-binders secured many seats and was probably the most successful vote catcher used by the Borden heeler. In addition to this, it is said that an immense campaign fund was available right from the commencement of the elections and that the Conservative workers were well provided with money supplied by eastern manufacturers for the purpose of waging a vigorous war against reciprocity. It is impossible to over-estimate the monstrous influences which were used to defeat the Liberal party.

The election of Dr. D. Warnock in this constituency is a great victory for the Liberal party. During the past seven years this riding had been represented in the federal house by a Conservative, but although the ex-member, John Herron, broke away from his party, sometimes it was difficult to tell whether he was friend or foe of reciprocity with the United States on natural products.

However, the fight is over, and, in the words of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, we "gladly submit to the inevitable."

Editorial Notes

Write it—Dr. D. Warnock, M.P.

John couldn't come back. Didn't we say so.

Frank Oliver bore the "Cross" during the recent elections and received the reward—re-elected by a large majority.

If reports come true, a noticeable extermination amongst certain species of the feathered race will take place on Monday next.

This is the time of the year when nature is trying to outdo herself in beautifying the hills and mountains as well as many parts of the plains in gorgeous colors and golden tints.

The many recent large shipments of coal from several of the towns of The Pass give a cheerful phase to the strike situation and certainly indicate a near return of the former activity.

A suitable and most fitting selection for the band to have played on the arrival of Dr. Warnock to town, just before the elections last week, would have been, "See the Conquering Hero Comes!"

The fall of snow on Thursday last and the chilly weather which accompanied it are but foretastes of what we might expect under Conservative rule with such a combination as Borden, Monk, Foster, Bourassa and Clifford Sifton to rule the destiny of this land of ours.

At the regular meeting of the Guild, held in the Presbyterian church, on Monday evening last, it was decided by three competent judges that women should not be given the franchise and that women's suffrage should not be tolerated in Blairmore. We might state that this great moulder of public opinion (view) thoroughly coincides with such a decision.

As Sir Wilfrid Laurier disembarks from the ship of state he leaves behind him a chart which R. L. Borden might well follow and a record cleaner and better than that of any other Canadian statesman. We believe that the great Liberal captain will again walk the quarter-deck of that ship, take the wheel and continue to safely steer it into calm and peaceful waters. Less than two years may tell the tale.

Children Seeking Homes

The Department of Neglected Children at Edmonton are looking for homes for eight Catholic children. Annie, a little girl aged eight, a particularly attractive and bright child, is anxious for a home in some good Catholic family. Frank, her brother, aged four and a half, an equally attractive boy, is anxious for a good home in a Catholic family, where he will have a chance to grow up as a good man. Joseph, aged nine, a good Canadian, with the looks and manners of a gentleman, should be an acceptable boy in some good Catholic home. James, aged twelve, is anxious to make his way in the world. Another Joseph, aged about seven and a half, a particularly handsome boy, who is anxious for a good home and who will more than repay investment of the good Catholic home who is willing to give him an opportunity to become a man. A home is also wanted for Lewis, aged three years and a half and for John, aged two. These are all Catholic children who are under the care of the department because of the fact that they are either orphans or because their parents are unable to properly care for them. Applications for these children should be sent to the superintendent of neglected children at Edmonton.

It should be remembered that the applicants must have good homes and that the children must be desired for their own sakes before they will be allowed to go to foster homes. The best homes in the country are none too good for these children, who come from nice people and who are well qualified to grace a place in any home.

The weekly payment plan affords wage-earners an easy and sure way of making provision for the time when their earning powers have ceased. For example, if a man at present aged 40 years were to deposit with the Canadian Government $1 a week until he was 65 for the purpose of buying a Canadian Government Annuity, he would receive $261 a year for the remainder of his days. And he died before he was 65 what he had paid in accumulated at 3% compound interest would be refunded to his heirs. Full particulars concerning the scheme may be had by any one over the age of five years if he or she will apply to Superintendent of Canadian Government Annuities, Ottawa. State age, last birthday, the age at which Annuity is desired to begin, and the amount which you want to pay each week, and the Superintendent will tell you what amount of Annuity the payments will buy.

BORN—on Sunday last, to Mr. and Mrs. Charles Chestnut, a son.

Miss C. Lindsay has accepted a position as head cook at the Cement Lodge.

Miss A. Albert went to Pincher Creek on Monday and returned to town on Tuesday.

Dr. T. O'Hagan came up from Lethbridge on Sunday last and returned on Monday.

A communion service will be held in the Presbyterian Church on Sunday morning next at 11 o'clock.

A dance will be given under the auspices of the Church of England in the opera house on Wednesday next, commencing at 8.30 p.m.

To Blaimore belongs the credit of giving the largest Liberal vote of any town in The Pass. Warnock received 132; Herron, 111 and Fulcher 98.

Quite a number of the local sportsmen are going in search of prairie chickens and partridges on Monday next. We hope that no mishap will follow. Be sure of your game before you shoot.

On Tuesday morning several of H. G. Bigelow's sympathizers watched him roll a bean from the post office to L. H. Putnam's law office, Victoria street, as the result of a bet on the recent elections.

The young men of Blaimore gave a pleasant dance in the opera house on Tuesday evening last. A goodly number was present. The floor was in splendid condition and the "light fantastic" was indulged in with considerable pleasure.

David Brattstrom and his company in the funny Swedish dialect comedy, "Yon Yonson" appeared in the opera house here on Monday evening last. The performance was of a humorous nature and kept the audience continually laughing.

Dr. D. Warnock, the newly elected M.P. for this constituency, was in town on Tuesday morning shaking hands with many of his friends. The doctor says that he will do his utmost for the good of his constituency and will ever defend its cause in the house of parliament.

The picnic which was to have taken place here on Wednesday (yesterday) afternoon under the auspices of the Church of England was cancelled on account of the unsettled weather. Those who had asked for this occasion might leave same at this office where they will be taken care of.

W. J. Bartlett, manager of this paper, will arrive in Blaimore on Sunday next after spending upwards of three months with parents and friends in Newfoundland, some of the New England States and several cities in eastern Canada. He is being accompanied by another member of the family.

The season for antelopes, prairie chickens and partridges opens on the 1st of October but as that date falls on Sunday, the first lawful day will be on the following Monday. The law prohibits the killing by one person of more than two antelopes (male) for the season and of more than ten chickens or partridges per day or of more than one hundred per season.

Bowling Allies Being Installed at Blaimore

James Burrows and "Danny" Lewis are installing in their pool room on Victoria Street, two ten-pin bowling allies of the Brunswick-Balke-Collender's make. The allies are being installed on the east side of the main floor and will be ready for use in about two weeks.

Coleman Notes

P. Burns, the cattle king, was in Coleman on Monday on a tour of inspection.

Several Colemanites attended the dance given at Blaimore on Tuesday evening. They all report a good time.

Quite a number of beautiful cottages have been erected here during the past few months and several more are in course of erection.

Dr. D. Warnock, M.P., was in town on Monday and met quite a number of his supporters. The newly elected M.P. received numerous congratulations during his visit here.

Miss Jameson, of Calgary, president of the Rebekah Assembly, was in town on Monday evening and met the members of the local Rebekah Lodge in their hall in the evening.

The vote polled at Coleman on Thursday of last week was larger than that polled by any other town in The Pass. The result was: Warnock, Liberal, 118; Herron, Conservative, 51; Fulcher, Socialist, 227.

A party of ambitious and venturesome Colemanites with perhaps a unit from Blaimore, will endeavor to scale the Willoughby ridge of mountains on Wednesday afternoon next. Another case of "lofty ambitions."

CORRESPONDENCE

TO THE EDITOR OF THE VINDICATOR:

DEAR SIR,—Kindly allow me space in your valuable paper, which is, I am told, the source of illumination on matters social, moral and political for the district.

Acknowledging ourselves to be ignorant to far as politics and a lot of other things are concerned, in spite of, or perhaps because of the abundance of reading matter which comes to our hand, each organ purporting to set forth the matter as it really is, and in anticipation of the time when we, as women, shall have the privilege of the franchise, a few of the bravest of us wandered our way to the hall of learning, the Blaimore opera house, last Wednesday evening, where, we were informed, we should bear both sides of the story, or rather three sides of it, from some of the leading lights in circles political. On our arrival we beheld on the platform such an array of greatness as almost took our breath away and the question presented itself "Who's Who and Why?" but we patiently wait for the chairman to announce their degree of greatness.

The first to speak was a lawyer, and even we were aware of the fact that a lawyer's cleverness lies in hiding, rather than revealing the truth, we did not look for much light on the subject from him but waited for the next speaker who, as you probably know, was the speaker of the evening, and he told us, with all the eloquence at his command, what the Liberal party has always stood for, what is its position in regard to the present issue and what he would endeavor to do for this constituency if favored with the support of the electors, and we thought now we are getting the real thing, but the next speaker, who was "agin the government," undid all we were told by telling us that what the other speakers had just told us was all wrong, that the Liberal party were thieves and robbers and that the Conservative party was the right one to vote for. Then we listened with wonder to the fluent advocate of the third party whose platform bade fair to bridge the chasm which stretched between the other two and whose cause appeared equally as good, perhaps even better because of the far-reaching influence of the great machine, Socialism. And our curiosity was aroused and would like to have heard him explain the practical side of it as we have no doubt about its being a good thing if it could be worked. It was all very interesting also very puzzling and we look around at our more fortunate brothers who find that they are offering up incense to the greatness before us and through the cloud we can still catch the glimmer of that brilliance which holds us all in thrall in this period of the world's history.

SOULFUL SHADES.

Effect on Woman of the Color of Her Clothes.

QUIXOTIC, BUT WORKS WELL.

The Servant Problem Approached by One Housekeeper in a Decidedly Novel and Interesting Way That Worked Beautifully All Round.

Dear Eliza—This is a season when color in clothes certainly runs riot. Many of the combinations are fetching and fascinating if put upon the right woman. But when the lady's fancy is turned loose in this work the result is often disastrous indeed. Now, please explain, if you can, the reason why some women never seem to understand their color affinities. And still another question. Why don't women study the influence of color on the spirit and regulate the colors in their wardrobe accordingly? If they did it would make dressing so much more interesting, don't you think?

To give you an idea of what I mean concerning the effect of color on the spirit, a black gown aggravates melancholy of mood. Put on a black gown in a somber mood and see if it does not seem part of the mood. Brown is another color that should be avoided in depressed times. Brown is a charming color, but should be worn only with a glowing mood. Gray is another color to beware of in down times, but white never does the spirit. It has always a serene influence.

I am trying the effect of color on my own ego, and the other evening I went to a dinner which I was sure would be deadly dull because I happened to know my host had been visiting to it—nice people, but not in the least inclined to be jolly. I was sure the women would wear conventional black evening gowns. So I wore a brilliant red frock. And you have no idea how my spirits rose the instant I put it on. When I entered my friend's drawing room I was conscious of the glowny blush of the atmosphere of the gown and the full atmosphere of the dinner party. I felt appreciation of its cheery radiance, tingling in the air. There was a special warmth in the way I was greeted by those people that would not have been in his manner, however cordial, simply and solely because of the relief that my gown brought their spirits. That evening was a joyous success just because of the color I had chosen to wear.

There's no color like red for putting the heart into one, and a red gown is a refreshing color to wear, especially in summer. A gown of this shade on a hot day will invite one's thoughts away from the discomforting temperatures.

Yes, it's a fascinating study and gets more so the deeper one goes into it. Women who stick to few colors or who wear colors without relation to moods are immensely behind in the art of being attractive.

To continue our dress talk. You asked me what to do with petticoats. I was wearing with skimpy skirts. Well, I have cut the Gordian knot for tailored petticoats by having made a narrow five-gored affair of gray possum. To keep the skirt from wrapping about the feet and to make waiking a degree less difficult than the bubble petticoat I had the rather deep hem faced with this cloth and a narrow silk dust ruffle placed on the inside rather than the outside of the skirt. The possum shade the dust ruffle and the gray shade harmonizes peacefully with my tailored skirt. For wear with linen frocks, with a slip is not worn. I have a white muslin petticoat made in the same line, but the ruffles are of chiffon bound with silk, which gives a dainty, pretty effect.

Do you know, Eliza, there is a woman living near you who has come out solving the servant problem. This neighbor of mine is neither rich nor poor, her house is only moderately large, and the wages she pays her serants are not higher than most people pay, and she's "fifty," too, about her age. Still she has more success with her help than I have with mine. I am sure, she says, lies in her friendly interest in her girls, her recognition of what they do well and her favoring them just where it tells. But she says her ideas are so novel that they are interesting. What she does is:

Raises the wages of each maid with her sewing cost year. The rate is very small, only a dollar more a month, but it is done in a way that shows appreciation and is looked forward to. Each maid is given a week's vacation in the middle of the summer or just when it is most convenient for mistress and maid. As a matter of fact, my neighbor does not put herself out at all. She talks it over with both her maids—she keeps two—and the dates are arranged with the same harmony that exists in a business office. The week is elastic, for she manages so that a maid can get away Friday afternoon and need not come back until a week from the following Tuesday.

Now, don't laugh at what I'm going to tell you and call it Quixotic and impossible. It has worked so well with her and those that are under her it works. Every night when she is at home she holds a reception—a kind of informal talk with the maids, and when no particular business of the day has to be discussed, she discusses the affairs of the day, particularly the amusing ones, and to plan for those of the morrow. To the bedtime talk this mistress attributes much of her household comfort. It does not put the servants on an equality with her. It simply takes into account that the "help" we have is human and somehow it connects "upstairs" and "downstairs" as nothing else will. She has a theory that servants should be treated and cared for just as if they were children.

There are days when work goes hard with servants, the inventor of this plan admits, and when for no particular reason the wheels of the house drag heavily. The girls like to talk about this to the mistress and also when they feel alone and when the work is heavy. They are accomplished a lot. Now, when I tell you that this woman frequently makes dresses and trims hats for her servants and brings them to her on the days when she gives away you will think that my neighbor is a faddist on the servant subject, but she's not. Only the Wide World is so large that it has held it has been very good luck to visit. Yours devotedly, MABEL.

A PARISIAN FANCY.

The Butcher Shop a Source of Sartorial Inspiration.

One of the prettiest and most worn in London has a sort of power effect with fringed ends, and its evolution is interesting.

One of the fashionable dressmakers on the Rue de la Paix was at her work one day, and she asked her principal assistant in charge of the department of dressmaking to bring her in something quite new in the fashion of skirts. The assistant is frugal in her domestic affairs and does her own mending on Sundays, the only day in the week she has an opportunity of teaching her servant the principles of domestic economy.

Her brain was working with models as she entered the butcher's shop, and while waiting her turn to be served by the white aproned saleswoman she noticed the neat manner in which he had arranged his apron. The apron was tied around his waist so that it crossed on the side, leaving room for his feet. Probably this style of wearing aprons had descended from butcher to butcher for generations.

The designer did not stop to think of that, however. She first studied the hang of the apron from force of habit, then with interest, and in the end she asked the man how he draped it. The result of the conversation was the latest skirt, which is cut to drape the figure as a butcher's apron covers the butcher.

For the Birthday Party.

Hand painted wooden plaques for holding birthday cakes are charming.

BIRTHDAY CANDID PLACQUE.

The plaque illustrated was designed by its industrial school in Boston and is very unique.

Suggestions to Mothers.

Under the following circumstances milk must always be sterilized by bringing it to the boiling point:

In warm weather always in cities and towns where it cannot be obtained fresh.

When the milk is to be kept longer than twenty-four hours, especially when it is to be used.

During epidemics of typhoid fever, scarlet fever, diphtheria or any form of diarrheal disease.

When one cannot be sure that the cows are perfectly healthy or that the milk has not been handled carefully.

HOW TO BECOME INVISIBLE.

A Sample of the Mummy Used in Some Ancient Writings.

Some curious formulas of ancient witchcraft are given in Mr. A. E. Waite's "Book of Ceremonial Magic." Here is a recipe for becoming invisible:

"Begin this operation on a Wednesday before the sun rises, being fasted with seven black tears. Take the head of a dead man. Place one of the legs in his mouth, two in his eyes and two in his ears. Then make upon the head the character of the figure who now follows, thus stated. This done, ripper the head with the finger toward heaven, and every day before sunrise for the space of nine days water it with sweetened honey."

"On the eighth day you will find the cited spirit, who will say unto you: 'What dost thou?' You shall reply: 'I am invisible man.' He will then say: 'With me that little, will water it myself.' You will answer by refusing, and he will again ask you, but you must not give in. He will then say: 'I shall stretch forth his hand and show you the same figure which you have traced upon the head suspended from the ceiling of the room. In that case you may be assured that it is really the spirit of the head, because another might take your unwares, which would ruin you, with some further operation would be unfruitful. When you have given him your oath he will water the head and depart on the morrow, when he is to come, you shall return and shall find your beam ripe. Take them, place one in your mouth and then look at yourself in a glass. If you cannot see yourself it is good. Do the same with the rest or they may be lost in the mouth of a child."

ESKIMO WIDOWERS.

Six Weeks Is the Limit They Will Wait Before Remarrying.

In civilization it is said that a wife does not always live to her husband's ease or render his life more supportable, but up on the barren grounds the worst of wives would be better than none.

There, among the heathen tribes, if a man's wife dies—provided he is a polygamist, in which case, says the Wide World, he is not bound to bury—he often marries again within the week.

Even the Christian Eskimo widowers are with child, for they are the Moravian missionaries to allow six weeks to elapse between the death and remarriage. On the very day after the six weeks have passed the husband presents himself with a new bride and asks that the marriage service may be speedily read.

The reason is not far to seek. It is said in civilization that a woman's work is never done, and far more so that true of the husbands of the savage and the heathen, the women of the barren grounds or of the ice edge. She makes and breaks camp, cooks, cuts up and carries to camp her husband's food, she dresses the skins of deer and seal.

She is responsible for the fastidious of footgear and clothes. On a journey she often carries the canoe and the portage she carries a heavy load. In fact, it is easier to write down the duties not expected of a woman than to list the numerous customs she must perform.

A Turkish Love Story.

A Turk knighted at his beloved's door and a voice answered from within. "Who is there?"

Then he answered, "It is I." Then the voice said, "This house was built by my father and me."

And the door was not opened. Then went the knight into the desert. There was nothing but Allah, and faster he fled in solitude.

And after a year he returned and knocked again at the door. And again the voice asked, "Who is there?"

And he said, "It is I myself." And the door was opened to him.

D'Orsay and His Tailor.

"D'Orsay, the Complete Dandy," as Mr. Trenchard Smith calls him in his biography, was truly aware of the value of his patronage to his tailor.

When clothes arrived from him, the most mysterious manner he looked for found their way into the pockets. Once, when this accident had not happened, D'Orsay made his valet return the garments with the message that "the lining of the pockets was forgotten."

The Old, Old Story.

"What did you do when your husband told you the old story?" "I told him to shut up before he was half through."

"Why, what a funny way to reply to a story of that kind?" "Oh, is that what you mean? I thought you meant the story he told last night when he came home from a time with the boys."—Houston Post.

Her Strong Chin.

Damon—The facial features plainly indicate character and disposition. In selecting your wife were you guided by her chin? Newton—No, but I have been ever since we were married.

A Case of Necessity.

"Why are you breaking up house-keeping?" "My wife's doctor says she has to take to the water, and I'm a different climate."—Washington Herald.

Nature knows no pause in progress and decrees, and attaches no name on all inaction.—Moodie.

AN OLD GOLD BRICK.

Used For Fleecing the Innocents a Generation Ago.

THE PATENT SAFE SWINDLE.

It Was a Plausible Trick That Generally Caught the Gull and Sent the Bewildered Victim Out of Town in a Hurry For Fear of Arrest.

Although the essentials of imposture remain unchanged from generation to generation, so that the rogue of today would have no trouble in recognizing his counterpart of the seventeenth century, nevertheless the fashions in trickery are as everything else. Old tricks are cast off like threadbare coats in favor of newer ones, and these in turn are discarded when publicity has rendered them familiar and therefore less effective, but plausibility and address are the indispensable attributes of the pentry who live by their wits.

The newest type of confidence man is the get-rich-quick individual who breeds of money and wouldn't turn his hand to a small "joke." He engages for victims with new corporations and good business ventures for sale, but he is the same man who a generation ago lured the sheikels by means of the latest safe claim. This game is now an outworn fashion. But it had its golden days.

Let us suppose a countryman, carpeting in hand, to have alighted at the union station and set out to see the sights. Although his name is fortunately printed on the outside of his bag or set down in a ledger held on the hotel register, he is anxious to find his way to the city. He is a stranger, who knows his name and the town from which he hails. The stranger is a very affable and the countryman is ashamed to think he cannot remember—place is the word. But the stranger is very affable and the countryman is ashamed to think he cannot remember—place is the word.

The two stroll by device ways until finally while they are walking arm in arm down a quiet bystreet the stranger's eye is caught by a curious object on the pavement. He stoops to examine it. It is a miniature globe about the size of a billiard ball. The stranger takes it over curiously in his fingers and finally sees that it is studded with a small plug, which comes out under pressure. Examining this exposed globe, he then removes the top of the plug, takes out a piece of crumpled paper, shows his dupe the empty globe and then surreptitiously examines it. The Sophisticated Maiden.

A young man and a maiden were betrothed. "Dearest one," said the young man, "I love thee. So great is my devotion that if another should but cast loving glances at thee a fierce storm would happen."

"What might it be?" quoth the maiden.

"Even that I would kill him. Dost believe me?" "Nay," quoth the maiden.

"Nay? But I protest to thee, I vow, I swear, that if another should make love to thee his life should pay forfeit. By yonder moon I swear. Dost believe me?"

"Nay," quoth the maiden.

"Now, what meanest thou? Why beliest thou that I would kill who wouldst not know aught about it?" "Tis-bits."

"A Band of Forgers."

ADVISING ELEGANCE.

A Specific Order.

A nice old lady recently called at the cutlery department of a large market street store and told a salesman that she had ordered a good razor for her husband. "What kind of razor do you wish, madam?" eagerly inquired the salesman as he prepared to show her his wares. "I really don't know," replied the woman. "I suppose I'll have to ask your advice. Tell me what kind you have."

The salesman forthwith told his prospective customer that he had razors suited to every shaver, whether his beard was downy or strong, and also that the blades were of various widths and weights.

On receiving this information the old lady pondered the matter and then said: "Suppose you give me something for a man sixty-two years old who weighs 210 pounds."—Philadelphia Record.

Why He Stopped.

They had been engaged only a week. He had kissed her fully forty times that evening. When he stopped the tears came into her eyes and she said: "Dearest, you have ceased to love me."

"No, I haven't," he replied. "but I must breathe."—Ladies Home Journal.

Household Hint.

"Your mistress," says the mistress, "has so delightfully rosy and light. How in the world do you get them that way?"

No Feeling.

"Does she play the cornet with any feeling?" "Absolutely none. If she had any feeling she wouldn't play it in the presence of her friends."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

"How about the little girl who had a little curl ring in the middle of her forehead?" inquired we.

"She plus it back of the left ear now," responded the poet.—Washington Herald.

DR. WARNOCK IS ELECTED

The Liberal Standard Bearer in This Constituency Given a Large Majority.

LIBERAL PARTY IS DEFEATED

After Fifteen Years of Honest and Progressive Rule-The Result by Polls

The fight is over and once again the political smoke which so permeated the atmosphere for several weeks is clearing away, the little feeling of animosity which may have arisen on account of differences of opinion is being dropped and peace and quietness once again reign.

The defeat of the Liberal party was a great surprise to many, especially to those in the West, but the defeat of John Herron in this constituency and of A. C. Magrath in the Medicine Hat constituency was a stinging blow to the Conservative cause.

The great victory achieved by Dr. Warnock, the Liberal standard bearer in this constituency, was a strong repudiation of the Conservative candidate and his party. At the last election held on the 20th of October, 1908, John Herron was re-elected to parliament by a majority of 293 and at the elections held last week he was defeated by a majority of about 800. So far as we can gather, the result of the constituency is as follows:

Conservatives Hold Successful Smoker

The Conservatives of Blairmore held an enjoyable smoker in their committee rooms on Saturday evening last. There were about one hundred present and everything possible was done to make the affair a pleasant one. The smoker commenced at about 8 o'clock, James Burrows was elected to the chair, which position he filled to the entire satisfaction of all present. The chairman made several well-considered and appreciated remarks. H. E. Lyon, J. H. Farmer, L. H. Putnam, J. M. Carter and Louis Boldovino also spoke on behalf of the Conservative cause and their remarks were well received by the large gathering of R. L. Borden's faithful followers. The only two Liberals present were M. Rosse and J. D. S. Barrett, who, on being invited, gave a few words in defence of the Liberal cause. R. Slugg, John Foster and the chairman each gave a solo. The gathering broke up about 11:45 and all went home wishing the Conservatives party prosperity and a progressive policy.

Women Should Not Vote

At the regular meeting of the Guild held in the Presbyterian church on Monday last, a debate was given on woman suffrage. "Resolved that the franchise should be extended to Women," and it was proven to the satisfaction of well-selected judges that women should not be given the franchise. The affirmative was taken by H. G. Bigelow, who by his gestures and high sounding utterances made an impression on all present. The lead in the affirmative was ably taken by Mrs. J. F. Lank, who was well supported by J. G. Smith. The judges appointed were Rev. A. S. Tod and Misses O'Brien and Davis. At the close of the debate, after carefully summing up each speaker's remarks, the judges awarded the decision to Mrs. Lank and Mr. Smith, the speakers on the negative side. This meeting was taken charge of by the literary committee, which committee will probably give another debate on October 16th on "Resolved that Bachelors Should be Taxed."

MANY MINES ARE WORKING

And Large Shipments of Coal Are Being Made Daily from the Mines in This Vicinity.

MANY MINERS ARE AVAILABLE.

Mines at Blairmore, Frank, Police Flats, Passburg and Burnis Working-Strike About Over

It is nearly six months since the miners of District 18, of United Mine Workers of America went out on strike, and the great activity which once prevailed at some of the mining camps in this district has become dormant. A resumption of work at the numerous coal mines and the progressiveness which was once so vividly evident throughout the Pass are anxiously hoped for.

While many of the mines are still closed and business at those towns has become somewhat paralyzed some of the towns are booming and the strike has not more than slightly affected them.

At Blairmore there are upwards of 100 men working at the mine at the daily output of coal is considerably over 100,000 tons. The management report that they can get all the help required and that every day there are applications for work from experienced miners. The number at the Blairmore mine of the West Canadian Collieries will be increased as soon as sufficient accommodations have been provided. At Frank there are several miners working and considerable coal is being mined. More men will be added in the near future and the daily output will be greatly increased.

At the Davenport Company's mine at Burnis there are forty men working and the daily output of coal at that camp is over one hundred tons.

The mines at Passburg and Police Flats, which are owned by the Leitch Collieries, are working fulltime. There are at present one hundred and twenty-five men working at these mines and they are shipping between two hundred and three hundred tons of coal per day. In an interview which we had with Mr. Hamilton, the general manager of the Leitch Collieries, Ltd., the general manager expressed himself as being highly pleased with the present condition of things and he told us that he considered the strike about at an end. Mr. Hamilton stated that he could get all the men required, that more miners would be taken on shortly and that the outlook for the future was very promising.

The mines at Coleman, Lillo, Hillcrest, Bellevue and Maple Leaf are not working on such a large scale as those referred to above, in fact some of them are doing practically nothing, while others are mining a little coal and making small shipments. However, the prospects for the old activity, the loud, cheerful mine whistles, the throng of busy miners going to and from their work, the pleasant homes
